

Junior Consultant Technology, Vision & Architecture

Create the bridge from business strategy into technology, shaping the future architecture as a catalyst for change. At Deloitte.

What impact will you make?

Our Technology, Vision & Architecture team is positioned at the crucial intersection of business, technology and industry. We help our clients re-imagine their business with the latest technological solutions and guide them through their digital transformation journey. Our team is responsible for assisting clients in formulating their vision and roadmap for technology and architecture that supports their business strategies, and providing an authoritative point of view on emerging technology trends. We are looking for a Junior Consultant to join us in solving our clients' most critical and complex business and technology challenges across the Netherlands and beyond. Together with your project team, you ensure a growing awareness on the importance of modern architecture within organizations and apply your knowledge and experience in disrupting technologies such as Cloud, Business Ecosystems, IoT, Agile and DevOps.

This is how

In this role, you will be part of project teams which advise on, manage and build technology solutions to help our clients deliver breakthrough products, experiences and businesses. Your responsibilities will include the following:

- translating business vision and needs into technology architecture and solutions;
- supporting clients with complex technology-enabled transformations as post-merger integrations, cloud-, agile and digital transformations;
- supporting clients with exploring and implementing disruptive technologies;
- assessing the current state and designing future state architectures;
- collaborating with clients and colleagues from different teams (e.g. Strategy and Business Design, Cloud Engineering, Analytics) to drive end-to-end transformations;
- taking responsibility and initiative to deliver parts of client work and communicating insights and recommendations to the client;
- helping with the further development of our team by contributing to social impact projects, industry development, learning and recruitment;
- supporting project management and facilitating client workshops and meetings. '
